

Investigation and Prosecution of Environmental Crime as a Crime Against Humanity

A COFFEE TALK WITH FLAVIANO BIANCHINI

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 2019 | 2:45-4PM |
BOALT HALL, GOLDBERG ROOM

Flaviano Bianchini is the founder and director of Source International, which works with communities facing environmental pollution and health problems principally caused by extractive industries. They provide high-level technological and scientific support free of charge to partner communities, helping them to assess damage to resources and promote restorative actions.

Bianchini's studies on the impact of extractive industries on environment and health have led to changes in the mining law in Honduras and the adoption of laws on the welfare for the city of Cerro de Pasco in Peru. He worked with Amnesty International on a campaign related to the impact of mining. He will address the investigation and prosecution of environmental and climate crime as a crime against humanity.

RSVP: <https://tinyurl.com/bianchinicoffeetalk>

HUMAN RIGHTS CENTER

UC Berkeley School of Law